So if you like a very nice time waster then this is it. 33 horus and I am still less than half way done. I'm pretty sure I can miss an entire year of my childrens childhood before I completly finish this game.. Excellent! A beautiful and fun game.. Fun game, a bit more challenging for the perfectionist than some of the other solitaire games around here.. Loved the game and hope for more like it. The solitaire was entertaining and I am very fickle about types of solitaire games. I reccomend it to people who like solitaire with a interesting gameplay..

this game doesn't provide anything you won't find in other solitaire games, but the whole package is so well-put-together that it became one of my favorites of the genre. nicely drawn backgrounds and cards, pleasant music, 300 levels, a bunch of powerups and buildings to spend resources on, npcs showing up occasionbally between levels to have a little conversation, no technical issues to speak of, nothing to complain about really, though it'd be nice if the outro only played once, not every time after completing or even quitting the final level.

sure, you might be all decked out \(no pun intended\) by the halfway point or so with a ton of money to buy as many wildcards and jokers as you want because there's nothing else to spend gold on, but obviously you don't have to, so the second half or final third of the game can still provide a challenge \(mostly because of rng, as is typical\).

I didn't have major issues with the first game, typical solitaire offering, but this is an improvement in every possible way, definitely worth buying.. Nope. Maybe if it was a penny. Yeah, a penny would be worth it.. First-rate solitaire game. Enough challenges to keep it interesting without moving it beyond being a casual game.. A good game that actually has a nice soundtrack and let's you replay hands to get perfect scores. Much better than their first game that had no replays.. This game is definitely much better than the previous one, however, it is not without flaws. It has nice graphs and the gameplay is nice and relaxing, the solitaire system appears to be reasonable - not too easy, not too hard. However, the game suffers from two really annoying problems:

- It is artificially long - you basically achieve everything halfway through the game and then just pointlessly keep on clicking just to finish it

- It is HORRIBLY bugged - the game crashes this way or the other more or less every few levels and has serious background display issues \(there are no errors with the game rules themselves though\)

This is a game for which a "don't know" button should exist, but taking into account the progress that the game authors have made from the previous game in this series, I think it deserves a recommend.. Loved the game and hope for more like it. The solitaire was entertaining and I am very fickle about types of solitaire games. I reccomend it to people who like solitaire with a interesting gameplay.

8.5/10

Avalon Legends Solitaire 2 is the best solitaire game I've played on Steam. Shadowhand might be more engaging in terms of a solitaire hybrid, but I'm a big fan of this game's tactile feel, the static way that levels are completed, and ability to work towards multiple goals simultaneously.

At its core, it's not doing anything differently than other solitaire games on Steam. Each level presents you with a interesting layout of overlapping cards, and you'll try and remove them all (or as many as possible) from the board before you run out of cards in your deck. You can only remove a card that is either one number higher or lower than your current card. Therefore, if you have a 6 on the deck, you can only remove a 5 or a 7. If you click a 7 and an 8 exists on the board, you can create a 6-7-8 string, removing a number of cards without having a flip another card over from your deck.

However, in Avalon Legends Solitaire 2, you're also building a kingdom. Completing a level provides you with food, wood, and gold. With these resources, you can construct buildings that increase your gold, food, or wood production, or even buildings that will allow you to purchase additional magic powers. There are a large array of powers to buy and buildings to build, and the player constantly has something to look forward to while playing. My favorite powers are typically those that help me create combos more quickly, that increase my maximum score multiplier, and those that automatically remove cards from the board at the beginning of each level. It is very satisfying to watch your kingdom grow as you construct walls, gates, moats, etc. From time to time as you're building, an adviser will pop up and provide a bit of cheeky dialogue, usually a criticism of what buildings you're prioritizing as you build. I found it rather amusing.

In addition, I like the fact that the goal on every level is simply to remove all cards. Perhaps other players would miss having levels with goals like achieving a certain card combo or acquiring a certain amount of gold (or another resource), but I appreciated the simplicity. I wasn't asked to use spares or wild cards to artificially lengthen my combo or acquire a certain score.

Lastly, I liked the tactile feel of the game. Some cards are inaccessible as a result of being covered in frost. Clicking these cards creates the sound of shattering ice, and I never got tired of it during my playtime - it's just a very satisfying noise. The visual design is also pleasant, of both the cards and your kingdom. If you like playing Steam solitaire games, pick this up.. A nice relaxing game with good graphics and sound effects, ideal for taking a break from killing and survival games. Maybe a little pricey even at the discounted price but I think still worth it.
